

March is National Women's History Month, and this year's celebration focuses on women who have persisted in the fight for equality and social change in the face of pressure to back down. The ripped-from-the-headlines slogan, "Nevertheless, She Persisted," refers to social and political struggles both past and present.

This year's honorees include such trailblazers as Geraldine Ferraro, the first woman to run for vice president on a major party ticket; lawyer and civil rights activist Pauli Murray, the first black woman to become an ordained Episcopal priest; and Elizabeth Peratrovich, a member of Alaska's Tlingit Nation who in the 1940s spearheaded passage of the nation's first anti-discrimination law pertaining to Native Americans.

In the present day, there's no doubt that American women continue to fight for causes greater than themselves. In this, they follow a long tradition of women who have persisted to make a better society, not just for women but for all. Their energy continues to inform and transform our country.

This month, Perma-Bound recognizes women's contributions with the following Women's History Month titles. Choose a grade level below:
